

THE VISN 5 MIRECC UPDATE

An Electronic Publication of the VA Capitol Healthcare Network (VISN 5) Mental Illness Research, Education, and Clinical Center

August 15, 2000

Vol 1, No. 2

Editor: Richard W. Goldberg, Ph.D. Richard.Goldberg@med.va.gov

FROM THE DIRECTOR'S DESK

Alan S. Bellack, Ph.D. ABPP, Director, VISN 5 MIRECC

I am pleased to be able to introduce the second issue of the UPDATE with some exciting information about the progress on our suite. Construction has been completed and we are neat, clean, and green (our new carpet). The hall looks a little naked without any wall hangings and our furniture is not due in until later this month, but we would be delighted to entertain visitors.

I am also delighted to announce that we have ordered a world class videoconferencing and presentation system for our conference room, along with roll-about units for MIRECC offices in Martinsburg and Washington. A unit is already on order (courtesy of Dennis Smith) for the new mental health building at Perry Point. These parallel systems will substantially enhance our ability to interact with MIRECC investigators at each site and for us to do staff training and telepsychiatry consults. Among the most exciting technological features of the Baltimore system is videostreaming: the capacity to download conferences and presentations onto an internet page. Anyone with the web address and access to the internet can then view the presentation on their own computer at their leisure. For example, if we in Baltimore conduct an in-service for nursing staff on the day shift of the new treatment refractory unit at Perry Point and stream the presentation, evening and weekend staff can watch it at the nurses' station or in any office at their convenience. Similarly, if we do an education program for family members, we can load it on a web page for easy dissemination among an unlimited number of families within the VISN, as well as throughout the VA System. Kudos to Paul Ruskin, M. D., the Director of our Education Core, who is the futurist on the MIRECC. He convinces us of the need to have cutting edge technology in order to maximize our ability to achieve our mission.

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

Richard W. Goldberg, Ph.D Assistant Director, VINS 5 MIRECC Ecuation Core

The overarching mission of the VISN 5 MIRECC is to improve quality of care available to veterans living with schizophrenia and their families through research, education and enhanced clinical programming. One important way to improve care is to enhance the treatment relationship between consumer and provider. Creating contexts of care that emphasize dignity, trust, communication, family involvement and collaborative decision making can go a long way in empowering consumers and providers alike to play a fuller role in addressing the breadth of consumer needs. Toward that end, we believe it is important for providers and administrators to learn as much as they can about the vibrant and varied programs and services designed to empower consumers of mental health services. Listed below are several state and national organizations dedicated to such issues as consumer education, mutual support, and advocacy. While the list is by no means exhaustive, we hope it provides you with useful information and new referral sources for your patients and their families.

Please also note we offer the list as a resource and that inclusion of an organization in this list does not necessarily mean we agree with or endorse the full agenda of that particular organization
